VSU Earns Top Ranking!
Virginia State University is the number one, public, master’s level HBCU in America. Go back and read that again.

Virginia State University is the number one, public, master’s level HBCU in America. Are you surprised? Perhaps you shouldn’t be. Those of us who have been a part of these exciting times, and those of you who have visited and kept up with campus events over the past few years, have seen this coming. The signs have been everywhere, but, like your own child, you never see how quickly they grow. Some years ago, the vision included new academic programs, new buildings, a sense of accomplishment and pride among our alumni that would translate into ever-increasing levels of support. Today, that vision is a reality.

Vision. The word is popular around campus these days. The vision represented by President Eddie N. Moore, Jr.; the Boards of Visitors who have charted the course; and the administrators, faculty, staff and students who demonstrate daily, not only the greatness of today, but the possibilities of tomorrow.

These possibilities are exemplified by the important research conducted by VSU faculty. In the past year, VSU researchers have been awarded nearly $9.4 million in grants. This issue will examine projects that are saving lives by bringing more minorities into the medical field, and sciences in general; that are saving the planet by developing more environmentally friendly batteries; and by reaching across the globe to teach budding Ethiopian entrepreneurs sound business practices. It’s certainly not difficult to envision the positive impact of this research on future generations.

More and more, our alumni and friends view support of Virginia State not as a gift, but an investment. Our lofty U.S. News ranking is due, in no small part, to the increased level of giving among alumni. Those who have lived and learned “On The Hill” understand these are heady times! The new Engineering and Technology Building opened in late fall, work is steadily progressing on the Gateway 500 residence hall and dining facility, Rogers Stadium boasts a new President’s Suite. Our alumni are indeed savvy. More and more are giving to VSU, at nearly twice the level of the average public HBCU. While we are truly grateful for this support, we need you to engage your own vision. Not of what your gifts do today, but where they’ll take Virginia State in the future.

One alumna who sees the potential is Angela Avant. A partner at KPMG, she returned to campus to impart her experience to inspire today’s business students. Two other loyal supporters, Loretta and Harold Braxton, translated vision into action by directing gifts made in honor of their Golden Anniversary to their namesake endowment that provides scholarships to deserving mathematics majors.

Yes, this year we’re Number One. However, now that we’ve reached this pinnacle, it’s more important than ever that you, our alumni and supporters, share our vision; to see not what Virginia State is today, but what it can be tomorrow.

VSU Named Top Public Master’s Level HBCU in America

U.S. News & World Report (USN&WR), in its first-ever ranking of 81 Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCUs), named Virginia State University the top public HBCU in the country among master’s-level institutions; fifth best public HBCU overall; and 15th best HBCU, public or private, in America.

USN&WR had previously ranked VSU as the number one, public HBCU in the Southern Region – Master’s Level in its 2008 Best Colleges in America rankings.

In its HBCU rankings, USN&WR used the same 11 broad categories as in its “Best Colleges” survey. These categories represent six, more specific areas: peer assessment, financial resources, graduation and retention, student selectivity, faculty resources and alumni giving. In the HBCU rankings, the 81 schools were compared to one another. Of these 81 institutions, 39 were public.

According to study authors Robert J. Morse and Samuel Flanigan “The USN&WR rankings system rests on two pillars. It relies on quantitative measures that education experts have proposed as reliable indicators of academic quality, and it’s based on our nonpartisan view of what matters in education.”

In 2004, VSU adopted a long range strategic plan that included, as one of its primary goals, a rise through the USN&WR rankings. VSU President Eddie N. Moore, Jr. said the USN&WR ranking validates the Plan’s mission. “We set out with a very ambitious, yet eminently realistic, vision,” he said. “Three years in, we have completed nearly one-third of our goals and shown significant progress on another 40 percent of our measurable action items.”

President Moore said the cornerstones of VSU’s continued success are enhancing the school’s academic offerings and attracting top students. “This past year, we graduated our first doctoral students, our first nursing students and our first students in two new master’s programs,” he said. “We instituted creative financial aid initiatives, specifically the Low Income Families with Talented Students program, which allows us to compete with any school in the Commonwealth for Virginia’s best students.”

VSU Surges in U.S. News Rankings

Virginia State University gained 19 spots in the 2008 U.S. News & World Report’s (USN&WR) annual ranking of America’s best colleges and universities. VSU’s ranking of 75 among master’s universities in the Southern Region made the University the highest ranked, public, historically black college and university (HBCU) and the third highest ranked HBCU in the region.

The region in which VSU was placed includes 119 peer institutions representing 12 states. The USN&WR evaluates schools in 11 broad categories that represent six, more specific areas: peer assessment, financial resources, graduation and retention, student selectivity, faculty resources and alumni giving.

In 2004, VSU adopted a long range strategic plan that included, as one of its primary goals, a rise through the USN&WR rankings. At that time, VSU ranked in the Fourth Tier of the rankings. In the ensuing

VSU Professor Develops Green Battery

In the electronic age of digital cameras, PDAs and iPods, one can't avoid using batteries. Batteries power our television remotes, cordless telephones and radios—necessary parts of the daily routine. However, when batteries become old and no longer power our gadgets, we pull out the spare set and toss the old ones in the trash.

Old, household batteries thrown in the garbage end up in landfills where their toxic metals leak into the soil and water, contaminating the environment, our food and water. Shahzad Akbar, VSU computer engineering professor, together with other researchers, have developed an environmentally friendly battery.

This past summer, Akbar and a team of scientists at the Oak Ridge National Laboratory worked to convert chemical energy into electricity using nanotechnology.

“This was a really cool project,” says Akbar, who is environmentally conscientious. “I was able to work with world renowned scientists and use state-of-the-art equipment to further a mission that will protect our planet.”

To reach their goal, Akbar used an electric beam evaporator to create electricity from a renewable fuel, methanol. Instead, new nano-constructed materials would be used to react with the methanol and oxygen to produce heat. This process allowed the team to generate electricity without using conventional combustion, thus reducing the amount of emissions and pollutants in the air.

Akbar’s participation in the research was supported by the Historically Black Colleges and Universities and Minority Education Institutions Faculty Summer Research Program. The program is administered by the Oak Ridge Institute for Science and Education.

“I hope to continue research that benefits our way of living,” says Akbar. “It is truly rewarding and I am proud of this work.”

three years, the University has risen to the middle of the Third Tier.

“Based upon the scores of other HBCUs, it’s clear that VSU is the highest ranked, public HBCU in the Southern Region,” said VSU Provost Dr. W. Eric Thomas. “This validates our strategy of increasing enrollment without sacrificing the quality of incoming freshmen; of nurturing students to keep them in school; and of providing the financial and academic resources to attract top quality faculty.”

The categories in which VSU experienced the greatest gains were: Faculty Resources, 28 spots; Student Selectivity, 12 spots; Financial Resources, 10 spots; and Alumni Giving, 13 spots.

According to VSU Vice President for Development, Robert L. Turner, Jr., these last two categories point to broad acknowledgment of the University’s success. “Alumni, corporations and local governments are witnessing VSU’s success with its aggressive strategic plan,” he said. “They’re seeing tangible results on their support and recognize VSU as an investment with positive returns.”
Virginia State University (VSU) and Owens & Minor, a Virginia-based, FORTUNE 500 company and the nation's leading distributor of name brand medical and surgical supplies to the acute-care industry, will work together in an innovative partnership to provide business mentoring services to MAC Medical Supply Company, Inc., a certified, woman-owned medical supply manufacturer and distributor. Owens & Minor has enrolled Chicago-based MAC Medical Supply under its U.S. Department of Defense (DoD) Mentor-Protégé Program.

Under the three-year agreement, VSU will serve as the Development Assistance Provider to Owens & Minor and MAC Medical Supply, working closely with both companies. For MAC Medical Supply, VSU will identify the company's business and market profile and will assist in developing business, marketing and market penetration plans. For mentoring company Owens & Minor, VSU will assist in establishing performance benchmarks for MAC Medical Supply and will also monitor progress toward these benchmarks. VSU will also help MAC Medical with the following additional services: developing publications, developing and implementing a training program for MAC Medical Supply employees, and creating a strategic business and marketing plan. Dr. V.K. Mummalaneni, chair of VSU’s department of marketing and management, will serve as project director. VSU Provost Dr. W. Eric Thomas will serve as Principal Investigator.

The DoD Mentor-Protégé program was created by the U.S. Department of Defense in 1991 to encourage more women- and minority-owned businesses to become defense department contractors and vendors. DoD prime vendors, including Owens & Minor, work with the protégé companies, nurturing them with infrastructure and business development, training, increased sales opportunities and sharing of resources.

VSU Facilitates Mentor/Protégé Partnership

In late fall, VSU formally opened its new Engineering & Technology Building. The facility will house the mechanical/electrical engineering, computer engineering and manufacturing engineering programs of the School of Engineering, Science and Technology. It features four multimedia classrooms, 30 engineering laboratories, a 126-seat instructional auditorium, faculty offices and support spaces. VSU received a $21.7 million GOB bond for design and construction of the facility.

VSU Researcher Recognized for Volunteerism

Dr. Steven Pao, food safety microbiologist in Virginia State University’s Agricultural Research Station, recently received the Bronze President’s Award for his volunteer efforts to assist the Veterinary Department of the Ministry of the Republic of Kazakhstan.

The ninth largest country in the world with a population of approximately 15.2 million, Kazakhstan is located in Central Asia, south of Russia and northwest of China.

Pao visited the country under the auspices of the Office of Volunteers for Prosperity at the U.S. Agency for International Development. Volunteers for Prosperity is an interagency initiative established by President Bush’s Executive Order 13317. It encourages international voluntary services by highly-skilled Americans supporting major U.S. efforts to promote health and prosperity around the world.

During his two-week deployment in November 2006, Pao provided Hazard Analysis and Critical Control Point (HACCP) system training to governmental inspection officials, and laboratory and food industry professionals. He also conducted on-site consultations on HACCP implementation and laboratory practices, and assessed and made recommendations on inspection and laboratory operations.

In its 2007 annual report, Volunteers for Prosperity cited Pao for his efforts in assisting the Ministry of Agriculture to build a comprehensive food safety management system that will help ensure the safety of food produced and allow the country to participate more fully in the global marketplace.

Pao returned to Kazakhstan for a second stint in August 2007 on another two-week volunteer assignment. Working with the Phytosanitary Department, he trained governmental officials and laboratory personnel on HACCP implementation, food safety procedures, modern detection techniques, laboratory equipment requirements, and evaluation methods based on national and international standards.

Pao has been recognized previously for his volunteer services to improve food and agricultural communities in Central America. In 2005, he conducted practical training sessions on food microbiology to quality assurance laboratory representatives from the government, universities and private companies in El Salvador.

That same year, he also visited Nicaragua where he worked closely with industry and regulatory laboratories, and lectured on laboratory certification programs at the University of Central America.
Program Aims to STEM Exodus of Minorities from the Sciences

By Janae Johnson

When children are asked “what do you want to be when you grow up,” common answers include “an astronaut,” “a doctor” or “a nurse.” Too often, though, minority children are stymied in the pursuit of these science-based careers. Virginia State University, working closely with area schools is embarking on a long-range solution to the under-representation of minorities in these fields.

As a part of a $1 million grant from the National Science Foundation (NSF,) Virginia State University created the Trojan—Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics program (VSU T-STEM), aimed at increasing the number of minorities in these disciplines.

Recently, VSU T-STEM implemented a focused program to directly assess and address the impact of a VSU/ Petersburg community coalition on the mathematics performance of minority students. This project is the first step in a long-term partnership among VSU; the Algebra Project, a civil/educational rights program; and the Petersburg School Districts. The project will create a “K through college” model of intervention, with the ultimate goal of increasing African-American performance and participation in STEM majors and careers.

Petersburg students have the lowest Standards of Learning (SOL) pass rates of any Virginia school system.
VSU Receives $4 Million NIH Biomedical Research Award

The National Center on Minority Health and Health Disparities (NCMHD) of the National Institutes of Health (NIH) has announced the award of a $4 million research grant to support a Research Infrastructure in Minority Institutions (RIMI) program at Virginia State University. The aims of the five-year NCMHD-RIMI program are to reduce health disparities by providing resources to institutions that prepare significant number of minority students and faculty in biomedical sciences.

VSU-RIMI program objectives are to build research capacity for biomedical research at VSU, to promote the participation of faculty and students in biomedical and behavioral research and to enhance academic programs in biomedical sciences and health disparities.

The program proposes four major cores: administrative, shared resources/infrastructure, faculty developmental research and academic enhancement. The RIMI research core consists of three subprojects related to diabetes, Alzheimer’s disease, and internal parasite infections.

The RIMI program will include a VSU team headed by Dr. W. Eric Thomas, Provost and Principal Investigator (PI); Dr. Larry Brown, Associate Dean, School of Engineering, Science and Technology, Program Director; Dr. Ali Ansari, Acting Dean, School of Graduate Studies, Research and Outreach; and co-PI’s Dr. Godwin O. Mbagwu, Associate Dean, Research; Dr. Omar Milton Faison; Dr. Glenn Harris; Dr. Brian Sayre; and Dr. Joseph Tritschler.

With the RIMI program, VSU anticipates to double the research productivity within the five years of the project period, which could be measured in the number of publications, funded proposals, number of students entering graduate school and total number of faculty participating in biomedical research.
Small-Scale Private Animal Health Care in Ethiopia Made Sustainable

Using small agribusiness management training provided through an assignment by VSU Farmer-to-Farmer Program, volunteer Dr. Jerry Nolte in March 2006, helped animal health product supplier Tekaligne Abebe increase sales by 32 percent and net income by 37 percent in just three months.

Nolte traveled to Ethiopia in March under Virginia State University’s (VSU’s) USAID-funded Farmer-to-Farmer Program. One of VSU’s major activities in Ethiopia is contributing to the success of the USAID-funded Ethiopia Dairy Development Project being implemented by Land O’Lakes (LOL). VSU’s volunteer US agribusiness development experts provide hands-on business development training to EDDP-selected input suppliers. The aim is to increase suppliers’ profitability and the quality, volume, and sustainability of dairy production in Ethiopia.

Abebe operates an animal health care service and drug supply business in the Chancho District of Ethiopia. Trained as a veterinarian, he has a total of 16 years professional experience in animal heath care, the last 10 years as a private vendor. Land O’Lakes selected him as a lead animal health care provider to be targeted by EDDP to improve service delivery to smallholder and commercial dairies in the Chancho District.

Although he had extensive experience with managing his business, Adebe had never had formal training in the fundamental techniques of business management. He spent a total of 52 hours in group and one-on-one training with Nolte. With this training, he established a computer spreadsheet-based accounting system to track income and expenses and manage inventory. At the same time, Nolte evaluated Adebe’s pricing practices and discovered that he was marking up his products by 25 percent. The resulting high prices were making it difficult for Adebe to attract buyers in competition with black market suppliers operating in the district. Nolte advised Adebe to reduce his mark-up to 10 percent and focus on maximizing volume of sales rather than profit per unit. Increasing his customer base would also help him increase sales of his veterinary services. Nolte also advised Adebe to join with other vendors in the district to buy supplies in bulk in order to reduce transportation expense and qualify for bulk discounts.

Results achieved:

- Adebe is using a computer spreadsheet to manage his business income, expenses and inventory.
- Adebe persuaded other nearby veterinary service providers to join him in a buying club. The buying club succeeded in buying products on behalf of all members and negotiating volume discounts with suppliers, as well as reducing its members expenditures for transportation.
- Adebe increased his gross income from drug sales and health care services by 32 percent – from 25,200 Birr during the first quarter of 2006 – prior to Nolte’s visit – to 33,275 Birr during the second quarter of 2006, immediately following Nolte’s visit.
- Adebe’s net income increased 37 percent – from 4,993 Birr to 6,856 Birr – in the same period.
- Including Adebe, Nolte provided training to a total of 44 input suppliers – 11 feed dealers, 20 animal health service providers, and 13 artificial inseminators – including 3 women. It is likely that many of these also increased their sales and profits making use of the training Nolte provided.
Dr. Alvin F. Poussaint brought a message of value and optimism to Virginia State University’s Fall Commencement. He told the assembled graduates and their families and friends “you’re here because you’re not quitters.” The noted psychiatrist and media analyst, perhaps most well known for his collaborations with Bill Cosby on several books and The Cosby Show, told graduates to “take care of yourself, your mental health and physical health.”

Dr. Poussaint implored graduates to give back, to their new alma mater, but more importantly, to future generations. “You must carry yourselves and your children forward,” he said. “Everyone has a responsibility to make a difference in their lives.”

Citing a statistic that 80 percent of inmates are drop-outs, he said that, by earning a degree, the freshly-minted VSU alumni were protecting themselves against many of society’s ills.

VSU honored Dr. Poussaint by bestowing upon him an Honorary Doctor of Humane Letters. The university also honored its two highest ranking graduates: Yawavi Assiobo, an accounting major from Richmond, who graduated with a 3.808 GPA; and Shanieka Jones, a criminal justice major from Amityville, NY, who graduated with a 3.796 GPA.
“If you believe in yourself, you can achieve anything that your mind can imagine,” Angela Avant ’81 recently told a group of VSU business students. “In order to succeed, one must first believe that he or she can.”

This fall the School of Business hosted the first Angela Avant Day, which served as an opportunity for students to interact with prominent alumni in their field of study.

“I was quite honored and humbled that a day was held in my honor,” admits Avant. “When I approached Singleton Hall and read ‘Angela Avant Day’ on the banner, I felt proud. I am rarely speechless, but I was at that moment.”

Avant is a proud graduate of the School of Business, where she studied accounting and finance. She is one of a few black women who hold the rank of partner at KPMG, a global company that provides audit, tax and advisory services to a wide-range of clients.

While on campus, she visited several accounting classes and met with VSU’s chapter of the National Association of Black Accountants (NABA). “I enjoyed meeting with the students,” says Avant. “They are truly an extraordinary group of leaders and I believe they will excel in the industry.”

According to Avant, while students must work hard to excel in the classroom, however, what they do outside is equally important. “When I was a student, I had a campus job, was in the band and pledged a sorority,” she recalls. “I gained invaluable social and personal skills being involved in clubs and organizations.”

She believes the ability to work with people and keeping a positive attitude will help students succeed.

“I always tell students they must have a team-player attitude. That often makes the difference between good and great leaders.”

Avant has made it a priority to give back to VSU. Remembering her days on the Hill motivates her to help today’s students. “As a student at VSU, I learned so much. The faculty and staff did a tremendous job preparing us for the workforce. Now, I am able to return the favor.”

Avant met with members of the business faculty to discuss funding support from KPMG. During the luncheon, she presented a $6,000 check to the School on behalf of KPMG. “This is the start of a wonderful partnership with VSU and KPMG. I know our efforts will be most beneficial to our students,” says Avant.

Note: Angela Avant will deliver the keynote address at the 2008 Founder’s Day on Thursday, March 6.

Reunion 2008 will celebrate classes ending in “3” & “8,” including our Golden Anniversary Class of 1958. Plans are already under way for a terrific Trojan weekend! Alumni Weekend is a great time to reminisce with old friends, recapture fond memories and renew ties to Virginia State. Registration materials for all alumni in reunion will be mailed in late February.

Parents did not obtain an education above high school. These parents are identified as “ordinary parents who possessed extraordinary wisdom.” Parents recognized were:

- Mrs. Pearl E. S. Stewart Bonner (Posthumously)
- Mrs. Clara G. Lesane
- Mr. & Mrs. Percy Everson, Sr. (Posthumously)
- SFC Samuel* & Mrs. Aecha Kim Northington
  *deceased

Twelve children from these unions received bachelor’s and master’s degrees from VSU, totaling more than 57 years of study at VSU. Emcee for this event was Mrs. Raymon Bessix, VSU Alumna. A commentary highlighting the event was done by Ms. Annie Jackson Ellison, VSU Alumna. More than 100 well wishers attended. Funds from this event will go toward scholarships for deserving area high school graduates who attend Virginia State University.

The Greater New York Chapter celebrated its 20th Anniversary at a gala dinner dance in November. The event was attended by 165 alumni and friends who helped the chapter celebrate as they honored four Loyal Daughters (Martha Brown ’55, Mary Coleman ’58, Audrey-Miller Sydney ’60, Barbara (Booker) Winborne ’60) who had the vision and fortitude to reactivate the chapter after a number of years of inactivity. Two Loyal Sons (Theodore Charity ’52 and Lemuel Copeland ’57) were honored for their many years of dedication and continued commitment to the chapter. Music for the festive occasion was provided by versatile jazz artist Eddie Pazant ’60 and his orchestra.

The Virginia State University Concert Choir visited Philadelphia in November. Along with performances at local high schools, the choir, under the direction of Ms. Johnnella Edmonds and Mr. Buckner Gamby, performed for members of The Greater Philadelphia Chapter. The choir presented a well-rounded repertoire of musical works that demonstrated the superb skills of the singers, the conductor and the accompanist. Alumni from 1934 through the 1980s attended, gathering before the benediction to sing VSU’s Evening Song with the Concert Choir. Presiding over the program was Gloria Toxey Jones ’70. Dr. Mildred F. Johnson, President of the Greater Philadelphia Chapter Ms. Edmonds with a dozen orange roses.

The Richmond Chapter is proud to announce it has more than 120 financial members as of November 30. Stephanie Smith, Chapter Membership Committee Chairperson, and Jimmie Steverson are leading this year’s effort to exceed last year’s record setting number of 143 members in the Richmond Chapter. The chapter’s goal of 200 members is coming close to reality.

The VSU Richmond Pre-Alumni Chapter has been re-activated. Through the efforts of the Richmond Alumni Chapter and the Office of Alumni Relations, over 20 students have joined the Pre-Alumni Chapter. Book scholarships were awarded to two Richmond students at the Richmond Alumni Chapter’s Annual Christmas Party in December.

The Chapter’s Annual Scholarship Dinner/Dance will be held on March 22, 2008. This is a fun-filled social event to raise funds for student scholarships.

The Military Alumni Chapter via the Robert M. Hendrick, Jr. Endowment Scholarship Fund provided three scholarships to VSU students in the Fall Semester. They are Derrick Johnson of Clinton MD, a junior majoring in criminal justice; Latoya Felton of Portsmouth, VA, a freshman, major undecided; and Chandle Clark of Woodbridge, VA, a senior majoring in independent studies. Total award of scholarships was $5,086. The Military Alumni Chapter and the ROTC celebrated 60 Years of Leadership Excellence at VSU with a dinner in Jones Hall followed by words of wisdom and encouragement from Major General Dennis L. Via ’80. The event concluded with a Hall Of Fame Induction of COL (Ret) Ronald Robinson, LTC (Ret) Veronica L. Baker, LTC (Ret) Napoleon Booker and 1LT Ruppert Sargeant (posthumous).

The Tidewater Chapter held its annual Trojan Round Up in November at St. Mary’s Catholic Church in Norfolk. VSU Board of Visitors member and Norfolk City Councilwoman, Daun S. Hester, gave an inspiring and informative keynote address detailing the State of VSU.
The Fourth Annual Alpha Phi Alumni Reunion was held at Virginia State University in October. The reunion dinner was a roaring success. The Alphas presented President Eddie N. Moore, Jr. a large ceremonial check for $10,000. However the total amount was raised to over $27,000 before the evening was complete. The goal of the effort is to establish a $100,000 scholarship fund at VSU. It will be funded solely from tax-deductible gifts. Every graduate member is asked to donate $100 or more each year for 10 years. Alpha Phi is made up of leaders that excelled during undergraduate days and continue to do so today. As such, they are doing something special in support of the Alpha Phi Chapter initiates and the Alpha Phi Scholarship Fund.

Four years ago, brothers from the late 50s, and early 60s started efforts to regain contact with line brothers with whom they had no contact for a long time. As they began this endeavor, it grew to an effort of a “reunion” of sorts for all Alpha Phi Chapter alumni brothers and Virginia State University alumni during the homecoming weekend festivities.

Even though it’s called “Alpha Phi Chapter Alumni Reunion,” the event brought together present and past Alpha Phi members, alumni of VSU initiated into alumni chapters, Kappa men in the Tri-City area and any other Kappa who wished to attend. The event not only served as a reunion, but an annual drive for a scholarship fund to assist current Alpha Phi brothers at VSU.

The reunion acknowledged brothers in the areas of lifetime achievement, 50-year brothers and a legacy award as well. Lifetime Achievement honorees were Dr. James M. Reeves, Sr., Retired Chairman of the Music Department, Norfolk State University; Lt. Gen. (ret.) Alonzo E. Short; Dr. James G. Townsend, Professor, Meharry Medical College; Dr. Porcher L. Taylor, Jr., retired US Army and retired Vice President Student Affairs VSU; Dr. Jerome E. Bartow, retired Sr. Vice President, Hartford Insurance Company; and Dr. Preston M. Royster, U.S. Commissioner of Education, Region III, Chairman, African American Adoptions Agency. The first annual Alpha Phi Legacy award honoree was Brother Thomas Moorehead, owner BMW and MINI of Sterling, VA.

The following brothers were awarded certificates for joining Kappa Alpha Psi 50 years ago: William T. Atkins, Jr.; Ernest J. Collins; Franklin R. Dillard; and Herman L. Fitzgerald, Jr. Brothers Ronald L. Thompson and Harry Johnson tied for first place in the “best haberdashery” category representing Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity. Alpha Phi Polemarch and undergraduate Board of Directors (Region 3) Eastern Province representative Brother Jeremy McClendon won the outstanding undergraduate award. Brother James M. Reeves who was some 80 years young in age was the elder statesman in attendance.

Donations are still being accepted, and should be made payable to the Virginia State University with Alpha Phi Scholarship in the memo line. A few dedicated Brothers worked hard to plan the Alpha Phi Alumni Dinner as well as to establish an Alpha Phi Scholarship Fund. This is monumental in that it creates a legacy for every Brother made at Virginia State University since 1935.

Members of the planning committee are Harold T. Amaker; William E. Bailey; Herman M. Bell; G. Frank Boyd; Charles A. Brockett; Clarence F. Nelson, Jr.; Starrie D. Jordan; Michael L. Rainey; Preston M. Royster; and Ralph Snyder.
Three Trojans are representing the orange and blue while defending the red, white and blue as members of the Army Reserves 48th Combat Support Hospital (CSH) headquarters in Fort Meade, MD.

Colonel Charles K. Johnson, a Caroline County native, serves as a dentist in the reserve unit. After graduating from VSU in 1971, he went on to obtain a doctorate in Dental Surgery from the Medical College of Virginia in 1976. In addition to operating his own private dental practice in Richmond, Virginia, he is a member of the Virginia State Board of Health as the Virginia Dental Association Representative.

A native of Portsmouth, Lieutenant Colonel Felicia D. DeLoatch is a pharmacist with the unit, and graduated from VSU in 1987. In 1995 she graduated from Xavier University College of Pharmacy with her doctorate, and currently works as a pharmacist with the Wal-Mart Corporation in Ahoskie, NC. DeLoatch is a resident of Suffolk, VA.

The youngest Trojan of the group, Second Lieutenant LeQuan M. Hylton, serves as the Executive Officer (OX) of the Patient Administration Division. Hylton is a 2004 graduate of VSU and 2008 Mater of Business Administration graduate of Averett University. He is employed with the Department of Defense assigned to the Combined Arms Support Command (CASCOM) at Fort Lee, VA. The former Martinsville, VA residence has made Richmond, VA his current home.
Homecoming 2007
Rain Fails to Dampen Golfers’ Enthusiasm

Neither rain, nor wind, or a new course could stop the Loyal Sons and Daughters from their appointed round (of golf) at the 13th Annual Presidential Scholars Golf Tournament. Playing in a day-long downpour, teams of hearty golfers braved the elements on the links at Lake Chesdin Golf Course and enjoyed the day, despite Mother Nature’s lack of cooperation. President Eddie N. Moore, Jr. and the Development team, led by Vice President Robert L. Turner, Jr. send a sincere “thank you” to this year’s golfers and sponsors.

COUPLE’S ANNIVERSARY IS “GOLDEN” TO VSU

When Loretta and Harold Braxton planned their 50th wedding anniversary, they decided that, instead of trinkets or other gifts, they would have well-wishers support Virginia State University.

Giving to VSU isn’t new to the Braxtons. The couple established an endowment with the VSU Foundation in 2004. Each year, the Loretta and Harold Braxton Endowed Fund provides financial awards to deserving students, majoring in mathematics, who carry at least a 3.0 grade point average.

The Braxton’s unique fund-raising “event” – their 50th anniversary, proved especially golden to VSU.

Responding to the couple’s request, more than 100 donors made gifts totaling nearly $5,600 toward the endowment.

Dr. Loretta Braxton enjoyed a long and distinguished career at Virginia State. She retired in 1992 as Distinguished Professor and Chair of the Department of Mathematics. Dr. Harold Braxton served for many years as Director of Religious Affairs and Dean of the then School of Humanities and Social Sciences. He retired from VSU as Distinguished Professor in the Department of History and Philosophy, also in 1992.

VSU is truly grateful to supporters such as the Braxtons, who chose such a special milestone in their personal lives to make such a “Golden” gift.
Virginia State University encourages our Friends to direct their investment in VSU through the establishment of an endowment with VSU or the VSU Foundation. We are most appreciative of the abundant generosity, forethought, and affection for Virginia State that is clearly demonstrated through perpetual support. Endowments provide continuous support of Virginia State University, into perpetuity.

The minimum amount required to establish an endowed fund is $10,000 and the minimum time frame to fulfill that obligation is two years. Awards cannot be made from the endowment until it has been fully established and has earnings, after having been invested for one year. The name of the fund and the restrictions therein are established with a Memorandum of Understanding (MOU), which must be approved by the VSU Board of Visitors or the VSU Foundation Board of Trustees once the minimum establishment amount has been received.

Building the University's endowments is a top priority of President Eddie N. Moore, Jr. Endowments at Virginia State University help us aim higher to achieve our educational mission more effectively. As well, VSU receives a dollar-for-dollar match from the Department of Education, Title III Endowment Challenge Program on any new dollars contributed to endowments.

Administrative Fee

The VSU Board of Visitors passed a resolution at their January 16, 2004 meeting to authorize the application and collection of Administrative Fees on locally held University funds, as well as a one time set up fee applied to gifts to endowment effective January 1, 2003. The annual administrative fee consists of 1% of the total fund balance of locally held accounts, including endowments. The one time set up fee for gifts that establish or add to an endowment is 2.5% for such gifts received in fiscal year 2004, and 1% for such gifts received thereafter, and collected at the close of the first twelve months following receipt of the gift. All fees are collected prior to distribution of earnings.

For more information on Endowments at Virginia State University, please contact Joy Haliburton, Assistant VP for Development, at (804) 524-6986 or by email, jhalib@vsu.edu.

Since its inception, Virginia State University has remained steadfast in its commitment to provide a quality education to all who would come eager to work hard and study rigorously. At the beginning of the 2006/2007 academic year, many freshmen from low-income households were provisionally accepted to VSU. The University’s Administration worked up to the first day of classes, attempting to raise funds for financial aid that would allow all of the eligible students to remain. Unfortunately, dozens of those students were sent home, merely for lack of resources.

You can help prevent students from being turned away this fall by giving to the 2007/2008 Tuition Assistance Fund Drive. The Tuition Assistance Fund provides direct aid that helps students stay in school, which is why your support is crucial to our efforts to raise $50,000 by September 15, 2007. Every gift to the Tuition Assistance Fund, regardless of its’ size, is truly appreciated and will help more students achieve their dream of a college education.

Higher education remains the passport to the ultimate American Dream. At VSU, we are proud to be the vehicle that will transport our students into the future with confidence, a quality education and a sense of mission. With your help, we can make a difference! Please give to the Tuition Assistance Fund.

Your will says something about you. First, it says that you care about your loved ones. You want to make it easier for them by taking care of legal matters relating to the transfer of your estate. You want your affairs handled smoothly and without undue inconvenience to those who will be experiencing grief.

Second, having a will means that you have sought to conserve your estate. You can reduce taxes and probate costs by designating what things will go where and who will be responsible for handling the details. The cost savings resulting from a carefully constructed estate plan means that more of your estate can go to family members and other beneficiaries.

Third, your will provides insight into your lifetime involvements and concerns. Bequests to family members tell of your love and concern for their welfare. And bequests to organizations speak volumes about your values.

For example, when you include Virginia State University in your will, you reveal that caring for others is worthwhile and you declare your belief in the mission of the University. Such action encourages those you leave behind to consider how they can help those in need.

Finally, when you include VSU in your will, you affirm that you want us to continue to fulfill the mission of Virginia State University in this world. You reveal your vision for our future! You encourage us to be good stewards of the new resources you place in our hands.

Your will says other things as well about your interests and values and commitments. And because it says so much, you are wise to think it through carefully.

If having a will says so many good things about you, what does the absence of a will reveal?

We in the VSU Office of Development want you to experience the good feelings of having a well-considered and well-crafted will. We encourage you to take care of this very important matter.

If you already have a will, a bequest to VSU can be made simply by adding a codicil that includes the following language:

I hereby give, devise, and bequeath to Virginia State University. . .

1. SPECIFIC BEQUEST: the sum of $____________ (or, the property described as __________________________); OR,

2. RESIDUAL BEQUEST [of assets remaining after all other bequests have been satisfied]:
   a.) the rest, remainder, and residue of my estate; OR, b.) _______% of the rest, remainder, and residue of my estate.

3. CONTINGENT BEQUEST [to take effect only if those named as primary beneficiaries predecease you]: If any or all of the above-named beneficiaries do not survive me, then I hereby give the share that otherwise would be (his/hers/their) to Virginia State University; OR,

4. GENERAL BEQUEST: the sum of $____________, OR _______% (fractional interest) of my estate.
Like many people, you may be uneasy about going to an attorney. Yet, an attorney who specializes in estate planning knows the right questions to ask and the best ways to help you accomplish your goals. These professionals are well-trained and well worth the time and expense they require.

If you need an estate planning attorney, we will assist you with a suggested list of names and addresses of professionals we have worked with in the past. Keyia Matthews, our Major and Planned Gifts Officer, can help you with this. Keyia will provide you with helpful printed material on making a will and supply information on additional ways you can include charitable giving in your estate plans. While you will still need to meet with your professional advisor for expert counsel, an advance meeting or two with Keyia Matthews will prove useful and could save costs by helping you make the best use of your professional advisor’s time. Her services are available to you without any obligation whatsoever. You can contact Keyia by calling (804) 524-5315 or by email to smatthews@vsu.edu.

Private Foundation Awards

The Cameron Foundation has awarded VSU a $25,700 technical assistance grant that will pave the way for substantially larger gifts designated to the creation of VSU’s first museum for arts and culture. VSU has embarked upon a collaborative effort with the Petersburg Area Art League (PAAL) to establish what Dean W. Weldon Hill has dubbed “an epicenter of cultural arts” for Old Town Petersburg. PAAL, a well-known local arts group, owns a historic building in the heart of downtown Petersburg. PAAL has reached an agreement with VSU to share space in order to expand its own programs and provide a home for the University’s future museum.

VSU’s museum is currently scheduled to open in January, 2009, with a special exhibit entitled “the Art of Africa” – a special collection of Warren Robbins, former director of the Smithsonian’s African Museum.

The E. Rhodes and Leona B. Carpenter Foundation has awarded VSU $30,000 to support public performances of an important compilation of classical piano pieces entitled 24 Negro Melodies. This collection was composed at the turn of the 20th Century by Samuel Coleridge-Taylor, an Englishman of African descent. 24 Negro Melodies has tremendous historical and musical significance, as the collection represents the first substantial body of classical compositions to incorporate music from African melodies and Negro Spirituals.

Dr. David Shaffer-Gottschalk, assistant professor in the Music Department, will be conducting live public performances/lecture series in Richmond throughout 2008. A highlight of the grant will be a one-hour program during Black History Month, to be aired on WCVE, the local public radio station for the Greater Richmond area.

A two-disc CD set of Dr. Shaffer-Gottschalk performing 24 Negro Melodies is available for purchase. Contact the VSU Office of Development at (804) 524-6986 for details.

LIFTS Endowment

One of the newest projects at VSU’s Office of Development is the establishment of a permanent endowment for the Lower Income Families with Talented Students (LIFTS) program.

A brain-child of President Eddie N. Moore, Jr., this program is a first-of-its kind effort among state-supported HBCUs that is intended to meet 100% of a qualifying student’s financial need.

According to President Moore, “Other schools within Virginia have developed programs similar to LIFTS, but I can’t recall another HBCU, particularly a state-supported HBCU, that has put into place such a far-reaching guarantee.”

Among other eligibility criteria, a qualifying applicant’s family income must be twice below the federal poverty level. Additionally, the applicant must meet specific requirements for GPAs and standardized test scores.

The need for financial assistance from the LIFTS program far exceeds the program’s ability to help. This past year only 40% of all qualified applicants received aid. To date, funding for LIFTS scholarships has been cobbled together each year. Clearly, the program needs a dedicated source of funding that can grow for years to come.

The Office of Development is working to identify initial donors to contribute toward a LIFTS endowment scholarship fund. VSU’s goal is to raise at least $100,000 for the LIFTS Endowment by January 2009. If you are interested in making a contribution toward the LIFTS Endowment, contact the Office of Development at (804) 524-6986.
